FOREWORD

With a hope that this volume with its compilation of scenes and familiar faces, which are so firmly stamped upon the graduate's mind, may in a measure serve to intensify the memories of a most successful undergraduate career, and at the same time be a tangible record of that career, we, the members of the Junior class, offer to the Seniors the

NINETEEN TWENTY SEVEN

REVELLE

EXPLANATION OF

A desire to instill in this book the simple dignity, the preciseness, and the beauty to be found in the old Grecian sculpture, caused the editor to select this theme as a modest, and yet inspiring background upon which to base the art work of the book. Each title page has for its introduction the drawing of a figure, some being in a restored state and others being exact replicas of the figures unearthed from the ruins of old Greece; each figure, so used, being appropriate, according to Grecian mythology, to the subject in its respective division

The background of the page is a complex marbled paper pattern. It features a dense, interlocking geometric design of lines and shapes, creating a textured, crystalline appearance. The colors are muted, consisting of various shades of grey, beige, and off-white. In the center of the page, there is a faint, light-colored illustration of a figure, possibly a classical statue or deity, which is partially obscured by the marbling and the text. The figure appears to be standing and holding an object, but the details are too light to discern clearly.

Hermes of the Belvedere

EXPLANATION OF

TO
HON. SAMUEL M. SHOEMAKER
CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD OF REGENTS OF THE
UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND

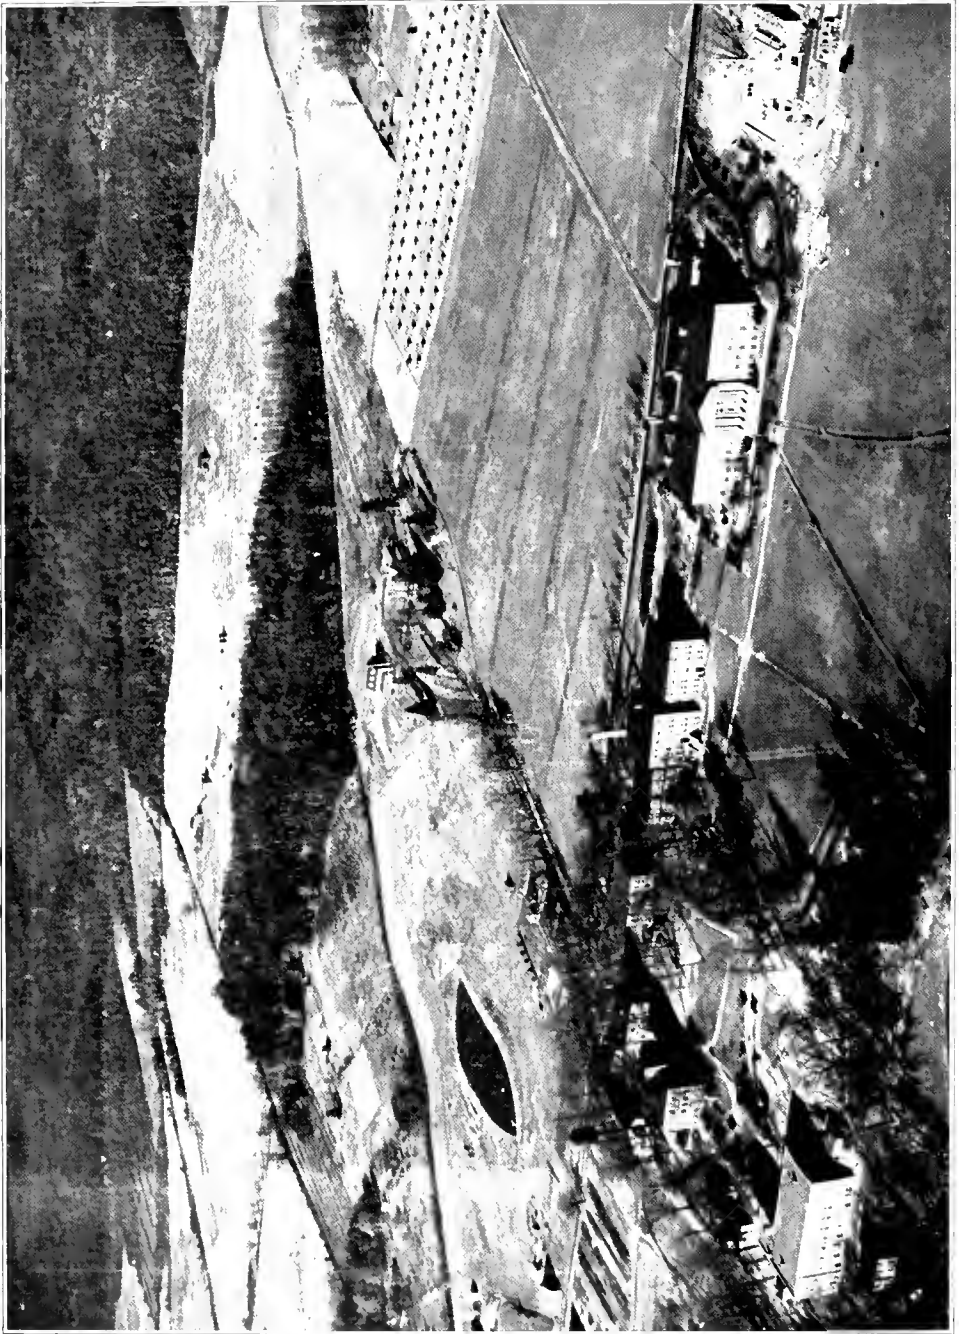

*In Recognition and in Honor of His Long and Untiring Service for the Public Good of the State of Maryland, this Nineteen Twenty-
Seven Volume of the REVELLE is Dedicated.*

A United States Senator once said that a man really becomes great when everybody begins to call him by his first name. Whether or not that be true of greatness of accomplishment, certainly no truer measure may be found of how well a man stands in the public esteem. And if there is one man who is, and should be, known for what he has done for others, that man is Samuel M. Shoemaker, and it is as Sam Shoemaker that he is known to the people of Maryland.

As a member of the Baltimore County School Board for twenty-five years, now Chairman of that Board, as progenitor of Maryland's system of good roads, as first President of the State-wide coalition of agricultural organizations, as Chairman of the Board of Regents of the University of Maryland, the imprint of his efforts is deep and broad. No man has done more for his State.

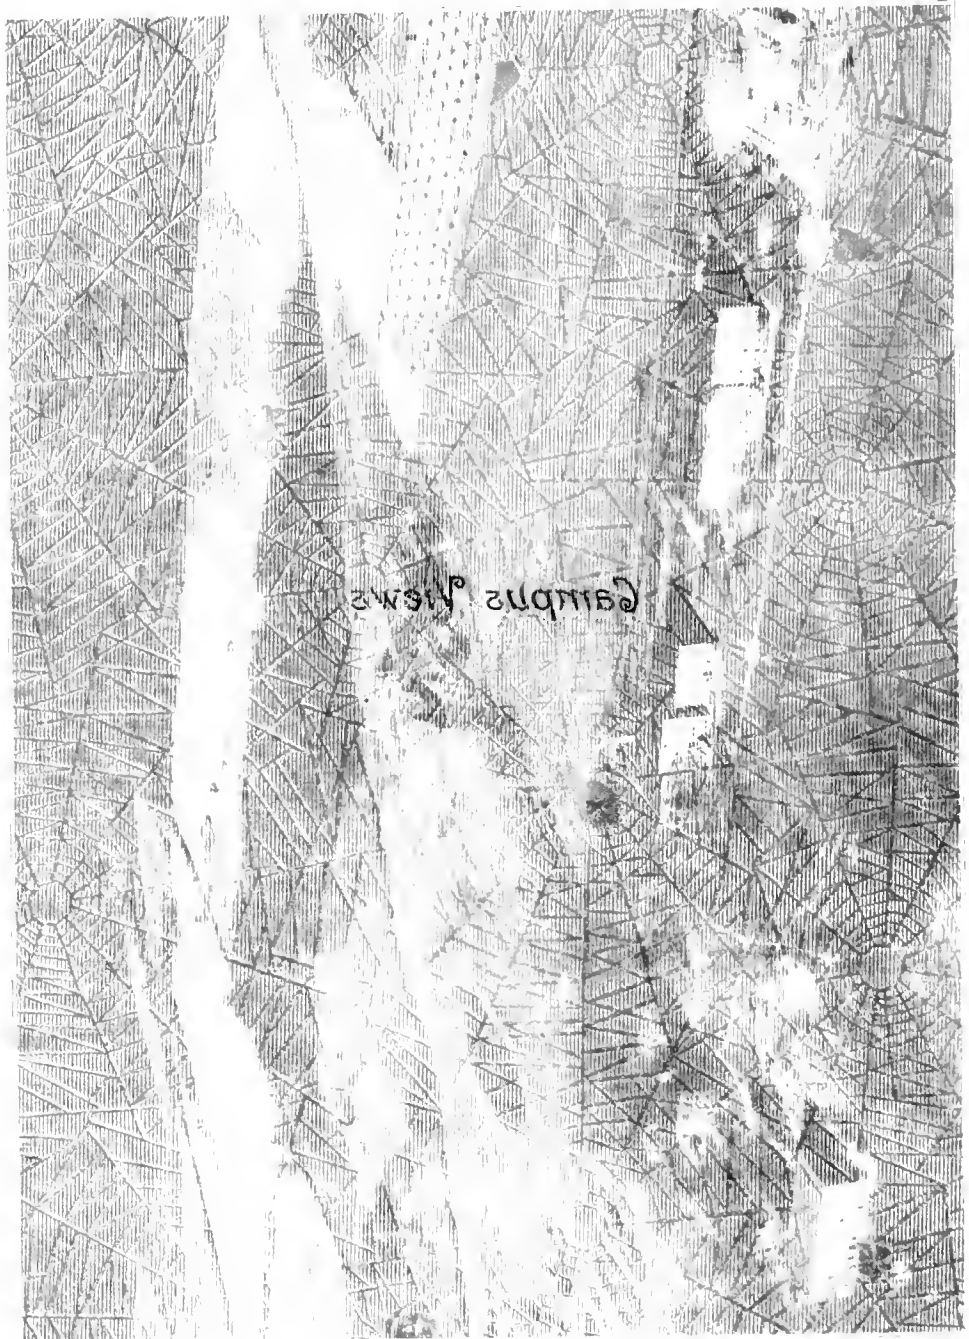

The students of this University consider it an honor to give this recognition to the man who is devoting his life to the public welfare of Maryland.

COLLEGE OF HOME ECONOMICS

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA
BERKELEY, CALIF.

HISTORY OF THE SENIOR CLASS

WITH new found dignity we stand in cap and gown, facing the future with heads held high, a smile of hope on our lips, yet a choking in our throats at the thought of all we are leaving behind. We pause for a moment to review the four years of our life at Maryland. We see ourselves as Freshmen—a ludicrous group of Rats and Rabbits. The faces of our officers stand out: Jack Tonkin, Roger Whiteford, Helen Beyerle, and Monroe Leaf.

We again see ourselves—as Sophomores: Jack Tonkin is class president and "Money" Leaf, treasurer. The other offices are filled by "Benny" LeSeur, Kathryn Stevenson, and Roger Whiteford. Recollections come of an over-powering egotism and of revenge handed out to the unoffending freshmen. We are not so proud of this year.

Our Junior year passes before us. Our class is everywhere bringing new glories to our Alma Mater. There are juniors high in scholastic standing and in all branches of athletics. Vividly we remember our Junior Prom. And now, too, that memory fades, and we see ourselves in the coveted role of Seniors.

It is hard to believe that, having reached this goal, our happiness is not complete. We realize with sadness that the few remaining days of our stay at Maryland are fast slipping by, that we may never see again many of our friends. To everything we see or touch, we whisper goodbye. Yet goodbye is but au revoir, for we will return, and in returning hope to find a greater and more famous Maryland.

GERTRUDE V. CHESNUT, Historian.

THE JUNIOR CLASS

JUNIOR CLASS HISTORY

THE REVEILL of 1927, in a measure, represents the history of the Junior Class. It shows that the Class of 1928 has come up to and in some cases excelled the standards set them by the Seniors. We have perhaps been slow in getting our start but we have now gained a position in student affairs and activities not to be easily attained by our successors. This is truly our biggest year in college, because we have all advanced to the point where we can appreciate everything we do and learn, and readily develop our faculties.

We have had our share of athletes, social leaders, office holders, and there seems no necessity for enumerating them. Needless to say, our Junior Prom stands out from other dances of the year because of the fact it was held in Washington, and was so well conducted. We also greatly enjoyed the proms of the other classes, and especially the Junior-Senior German.

Next year will bring the climax to our history at Maryland. Let us hope that we will accomplish something worth while that will make a name for ourselves and will leave a permanent record behind us.

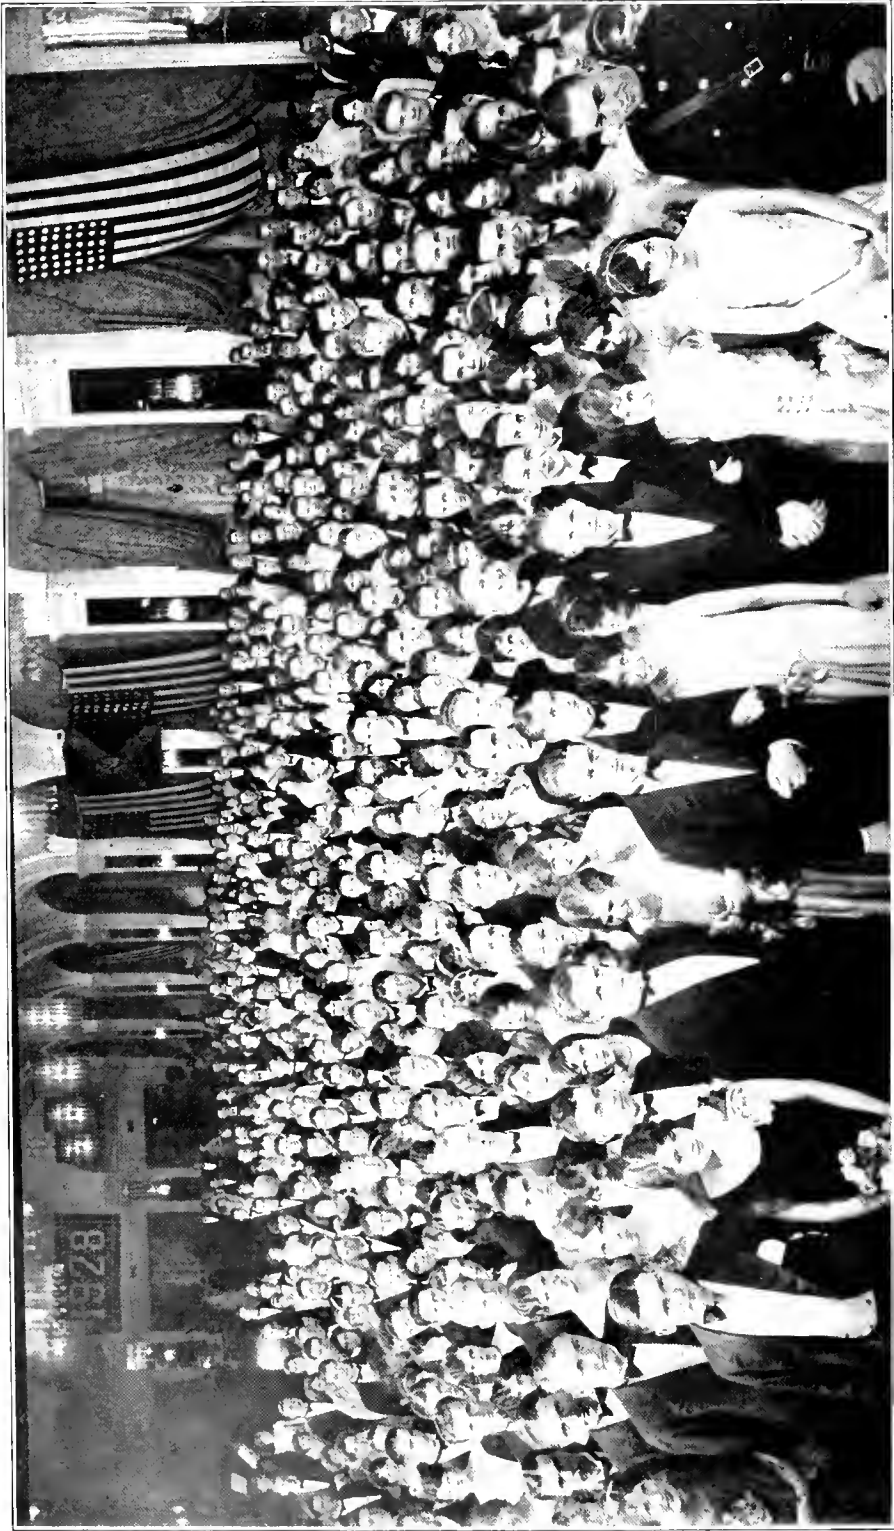

Our officers have remained very nearly the same throughout the three years: Donald Adams, President; Jack Savage, Vice-President; Frances Freeny, Secretary; William Press, Treasurer; Horace Hampton, Student Representative, and Fred Linkous, Sergeant-at-Arms.

It hardly seems possible that the class of 1927 will not be with us in person, next year. It is with regret that we say goodbye to them. Seniors, Maryland is proud of you, and we know you are proud of Maryland, which is as it should be.

SOPHOMORE CLASS HISTORY

A COLLEGE education, we are told, does not depend at first on books alone, but rather on paddles of the upper classmen. So it seemed the first five months of our college career. But "Rat Rules" came and departed as they always do, and almost every one survived. It was not until March that permanent class officers were elected, but once we were organized, things began to happen. A little later, the Freshman Frolic and Freshman Prom were given. The Prom was one of the best informal dances of the year, and it might be added, that the Frolic was thoroughly successful both from the stage and from the windows where the cabbage and tomatoes made their entry.

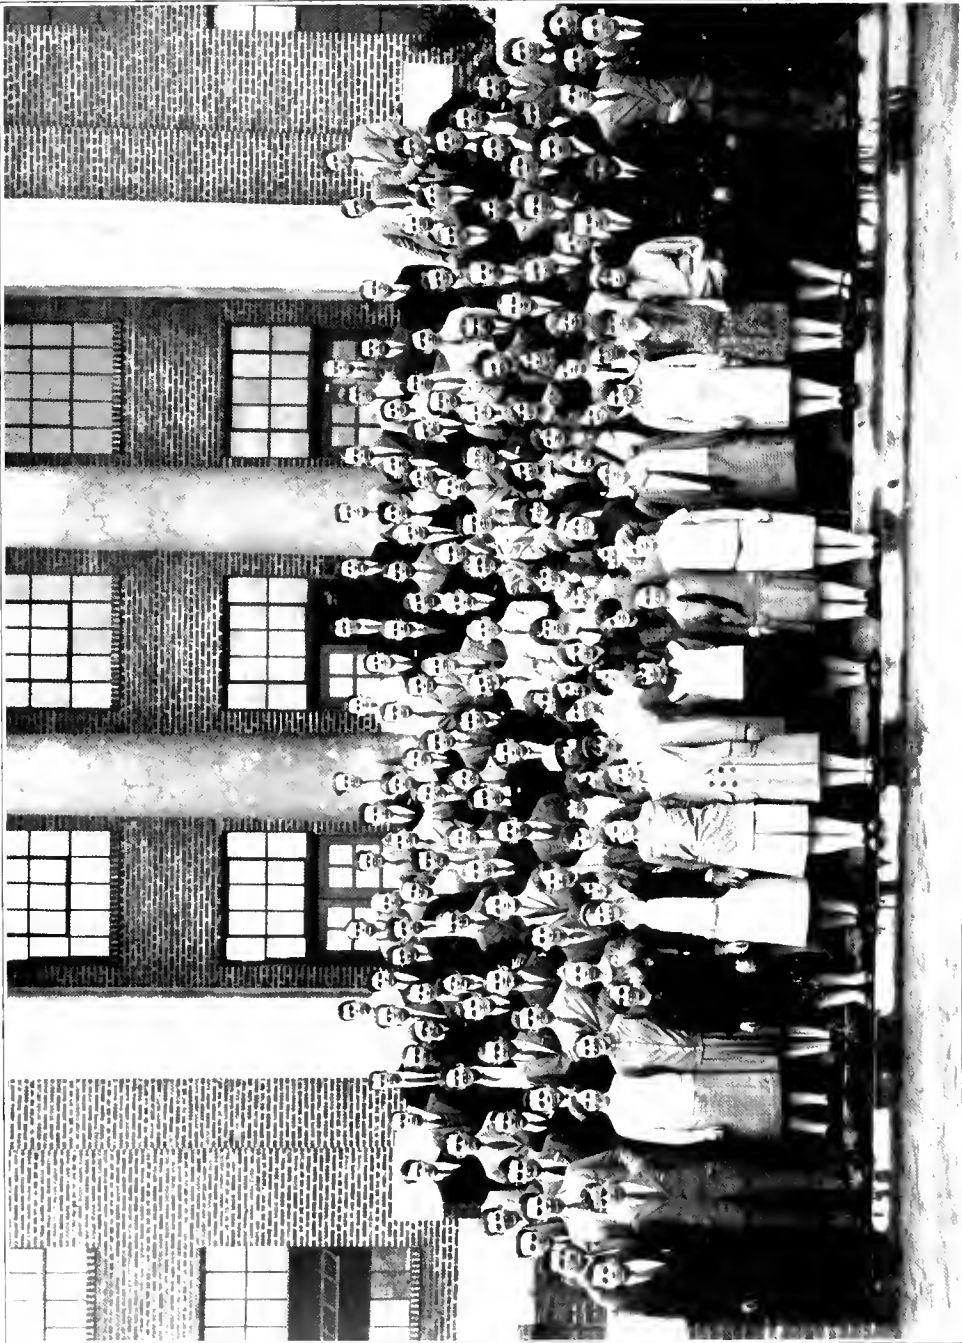

This year, a selection of dignified Sophomores, under the guidance of the class officers, Gordon Kessler, President; Bruce Billmeyer, Vice-President; Olyure Hammack, Secretary; Emmett Loane, Treasurer; Duncan Clark, Student Representative, and John Keenan, Sergeant-at-Arms, returned to school and proceeded to put the "Rats" through their tricks. We had a great time being bossy, giving orders, and seeing them obeyed. That "hard-boiled" attitude cannot ever be maintained again. It has been a great year for Maryland and a great one for the Sophomore Class. Athletics, scholarship, social activities have each come to the fore as the year passed. Every member tried to put over the idea that this institution was one of the best, and truly a worth-while place to attain culture, progress, and friendship.

HISTORY OF THE FRESHMAN CLASS

THE latter part of September found the campus of this old and honored University thronged with a multitude of young men and women, eager and expectant, and anxious to be initiated into all the "Maryland" secrets and traditions. We, the Freshman Class, had arrived. The Sophomores soon informed us with particular pains that we were mere "rats," and before long we were parading the campus with black and gold skull caps, green ties, name tags, rolled-up pants, and white socks. Several weeks after classes started, we elected our officers: Albert Heagy, President; George Roberts, Vice-President; George Madigan, Treasurer; Margaret Wisner, Secretary; Fred Ribinitzki, Sergeant-at-Arms. Better officers could not have been found.

HISTORY OF THE CO-EDS

THE first girl graduate of the University of Maryland received her diploma in June, 1920. She was the only girl in her class, but year by year, the number of girls increased until now, in 1927, there are two hundred and forty-one girls enrolled in the University.

The question of housing all of these girls is a serious one because of the lack of enough dormitories to accommodate them. There are three dormitories on the hill, Gerneaux Hall, the Practice House, and the "Y" Hut. Three of the sororities have houses at which a number of girls can stay; and finally, there is one approved in the park, the Homestead, run under the same rules as the dormitories.

It is interesting to note that none of the school dormitories were built with the intention of their being used as such. The first place at which girls were housed was Gerneaux Hall. This had once been the home of Captain Sylvester who at one time was President of the Maryland Agricultural College. It was later turned into a dormitory for boys who had won scholarships to Maryland State College. In 1920, it was remodeled and made into the first girls' dormitory. The Practice House was then built for the use of the Home Economics girls. It was also used as a dormitory because of the immediate need. The "Y" Hut was first built as an auditorium and chapel. During the war, it was turned into a Y. M. C. A. by the R. O. T. C., and not until a few years ago were partitions put up so that it could be used by girls as a dormitory. It is hoped that the State Legislature will grant enough money for a much needed dormitory at its next meeting in two years' time.

Although girls have been here but a few years, they have established a number of traditions. In 1922, the Women's Student Government Association was formed. The same year, the first girls' rifle team was organized. In 1923, tennis was introduced as a sport for girls at Maryland and the first team was selected. This was also the first year that May Day was celebrated by a procession and festival.

The year 1924 saw the growth of the Women's Athletic Association. Along with this came an increased interest in athletics; intra-mural basketball was begun; the first tennis tournament was held; and a Swimming Club was formed. In the spring of 1925, a Women's Senior Honor Society was introduced; the outstanding Senior girls were honored by being chosen as members.

Just before the first woman student was graduated in 1920, she formed the first sorority on the campus, Sigma Delta. The following year Lambda Tau was organized, which became a chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi in 1924. Also in 1924, the Kappa Xi Sorority was recognized. In the fall of 1926, the fourth sorority was formed, Alpha Upsilon Chi. These sororities have united in forming the Pan-Hellenic Society in which sorority questions are discussed and decided upon.

Our Dean of Women, Miss Adele Stamp, came to the University in 1922 and has really been the force behind the wheel in all the development of women's organizations. She was the first Dean of Women to be at Maryland, and is so well liked that it is hoped that she will be with us for many years to come.

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

THE Women's Athletic Association, sponsor and overseer of all women's athletics, has had another successful year. Rapid strides in organization and numbers of girls taking interest in the sports that Maryland offers has been evident since the formation of this organization in the fall of 1924. The annual banquet in the spring formed a fitting climax for the season.

The officers for the year were: Elizabeth Taylor, President; Mary Stewart York, Vice-President; Elizabeth Corkins, Secretary; and Helen Beyerle, Treasurer.

GIRLS' RIFLE TEAM

HELEN BEYERLE
Captain

THE Girls Rifle Team has again completed a successful year. The schedule included twenty-four matches of which only one was lost in dual competition. The team came out with third honors in the National Team Championship and relinquished its position as National Champions to George Washington who scored 2991. Missouri came second with 2990, and Maryland third with 2983.

MARY JANE MCCURDY
Manager

In the Dot and Circle Trophy, Maryland lost to George Washington by one point, the latter making a perfect score and our team made 499. Ten perfect scores were made this season, which betters last year's record by four.

Julia Louise Behring, Helen Beyerle, Hazel Kreider, and Mildred Hislop were high pointers and counted in the greatest number of matches. Mildred Hislop made a remarkable record by dropping only seven points out of a possible 2700.

Due to the illness of Sergeant Hendricks, Mr. William McManus took up the position of coach in the middle of the season.

Helen Beyerle and Julia Louise Behring will be lost to the team through graduation, but Alma Essex, Mary Jane McCurdy, Frances Gruver, Mildred Hislop, Hazel Kreider, Anita Peters, Clemencia Gause, Eliabeth Corkins, Elizabeth Garber, and four freshmen, Alice Orton, Margaret Meigs, Virginia Fooks, and Catherine Barnsley will be available next year. With such possibilities, it is hoped that we can even better the scores of this year.

Helen Beyerle was Captain this year, and Mary Jane McCurdy held the position of Manager.

TENNIS

CONNIE CHURCH

FOR some reason or other, tennis has not been as popular a sport among the girls as it has been previously. This was no doubt due to the unfavorable weather which we had during the time of the fall tournament and in the early spring.

The girls were late in getting their fall tournament started this year, and by the time they had reached the semi-finals the weather had become so unfavorable they were unable to complete the tournament. From the results of the matches, there seemed to be strong competition and also some very good material for next year's tennis squad.

The spring tournament was also late in starting and at the time the yearbook went to press, the schedule of matches had just been posted. It was hoped that the girls would play off the sets immediately after the Easter holidays in order that the tournament would be completed not later than the first of May.

The tennis squad was managed by Connie Church this year. She has been successful in winning three consecutive tournaments and deserves a lot of credit for her work with the tennis squad.

TENNIS TEAM

SWIMMING

FOR the first time in the history of Girls' sports, swimming became an organized sport. Early last fall, all girls interested in swimming were organized into a class under the managership of Eleanor Freeny.

Due to the fact that we do not have a pool here at the University, the girls took their dips at the Y. W. C. A. pool in Washington. They originally planned to hold their class at least every other week on Thursday night; but during the colder weather in the winter the classes were discontinued for a time.

About thirty girls signed up for the class at the beginning of the season and from their enthusiastic reports, the classes will probably be even better attended in the future. At some future time when the University has grown to that extent, it is hoped that we may have a swimming pool of our own here at school, and that swimming will become one of the major sports.

YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

THE Y. W. C. A. grew out of what was formerly called the College Women's Christian Association. In 1923, the members of the C. W. C. A. decided to change their name to Y. W. C. A. In April 1924, the local Y. W. C. A. received a charter from the National Board of the Y. W. C. A. of the United States of America. The purpose of the Y. W. C. A. is to meet the need for an all-campus religious organization among the women students which will correlate and co-ordinate all the religious activities for the women of the University. In co-operation with the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A. assumes a major responsibility for the religious activities of the campus.

WOMEN'S STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

EVERY girl enrolled at the University is a member of the Women's Student Government Association. This shows the thoroughness of the co-operative spirit of the girls in working for a successful system of student government. The Association fosters the development of good scholarship and high ideals in standards of college life as its aims. All social regulations for girls are made through their Executive Council which is composed of elected representatives. All these rules are subject to the approval of the Dean of Women. In order that the important offices open to girls may be distributed more fairly, the Women's Student Government Association has put into force a Point System.

The girls are steadfastly behind the honor system as an aid to self-government and the development of individual responsibility.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

WITH Omicron Nu, the oldest honorary Home Economics sorority, as an ultimate goal, the Home Economics Club was founded in 1922. Election to membership is based on interest in Home Economics work and its advancement and high scholastic average.

The faculty members of the club are Dean Marie Mount, Mrs. Claribel Welsh, Mrs. Frieda MacFarland, and Miss Edna B. McNaughton. Frances Gunby was President this year, while Grace Warner was Vice-President; Roselle Bishoff was Secretary-Treasurer, and Mary Stewart York was chairman of the Program Committee.

THE WOMEN'S SENIOR HONOR SOCIETY

IN the spring of 1925, the Women's Senior Honor Society was founded with the purpose of "bringing together women students of the University of Maryland of the Senior Class who have maintained a high standard of scholarship and leadership and who have at all times showed their willingness to serve the best interests of the University through its various organizations as well as by an actively loyal spirit toward college authorities."

Only twenty per cent of the girls from the incoming Senior Class are eligible for election. To be eligible a girl must have an average of B at the time of election and must have completed three years of collegiate work. Early on the morning of Baccalaureate Sunday an impressive public initiation is held.

The members this year were Helen Beyerle, President; Kathryn Stevenson, Vice-President; Gertrude Ryon, Secretary-Treasurer, and Julia Louise Behring, Ellen Jane Keiser and Eleanor Seal. Dean Adele Stamp is Honorary Member and Faculty Advisor.

IN 1925, the girls withdrew from the Interfraternity Council to form a Pan Hellenic which would be more efficient in coping with the problems of girls' fraternities. It has been the aim of these fraternities to work together for the co-operation of their groups with the ideals of the college. They are organized into a Pan Hellenic to encourage high scholarship, and to maintain healthful physical conditions in chapter houses and dormitories.

Pan Hellenic stands fundamentally for preparation for service through character building inspired in the close contact and friendship of fraternity life.

GIRLS' "M" CLUB

THE Girls' "M" Club is among the more recent organizations at the University of Maryland. It is open to all girls who have won a letter in the major sports. The club was organized about two years ago; but due to the small number of girls who have won "M's" it has not been particularly outstanding in its activity. It is hoped that with the increased number of girls at the University, more interest will be taken in sports and hence strengthen such organizations as this one.

The purpose of this club is to co-operate with the Women's Athletic Association in furthering its ideals, by fostering true sportsmanship, furthering interest by providing wholesome recreational activities, and encouraging a feeling of good fellowship among the women of the University.

Officers for this year were: Maxine Heiss, President; Julia Louise Behring, Vice-President; and Louise Harbaugh, Secretary-Treasurer.

DEBATING TEAM

DEBATING at the University of Maryland did not become thoroughly organized until 1924, at which time the Council of Oratory and Debate was formed. During the past three years, under the direction of this Council, many inter-collegiate debates were held, and the status of debating at the University has been insured.

Improvement of the debators has been marked, and this year, in our first encounter with the University of Tennessee, a team selected from the following candidates, Clarke Beach, Captain, Frank Witter, Hazel Tenney, Kenneth Petrie, Walter Plumley, Wilfred Hearn, and Delmas Caples, was successful in defeating representatives from this school. Incidentally, the University of Tennessee is considered to be one of the strongest schools in the South so far as debating is concerned.

This work which was aided this year by an appropriation from the Administration of the University, was supervised by Professors Richardson and Lemon.

ENGINEERING SOCIETY

THE Engineering Society is one of the professional organizations on the campus that has been very active in bringing about a closer relationship between members of the Engineering College whose major fields are different. Through a system of lectures given by prominent practicing engineers in all branches of the field the Civil, the Electrical, the Mechanical, and the Chemical engineer each become better acquainted with the other's work.

Lectures by such men as Mr. Burgess, of the United States Division of Aeronautics; Professor Skelton; Major Heron, of the United States Geological Survey, and Mr. Mather, Division Engineer of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, prove highly interesting and instructive.

The club has functioned this year under the leadership of Wade Elgin, President; Edwin Page, Vice-President; Wilbur Streett, Secretary-Treasurer, and Adelbert England, Sergeant-at-Arms.

EPISCOPAL CLUB

THE Episcopal Club had its beginning back in the fall of 1920, when a group of boys, desiring to found an organization which would meet the demands of the students from the viewpoint of Christian believers, affiliated themselves with the National Students' Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church. In 1923 the boys invited those girls of the University who were Episcopalians or who were interested in the work of the church, to join their organization. Each year the club has grown until there are now sixty-one members on the roll. The club owes much of its present prosperity to its honorary members among the faculty, and especially to the Student Pastor, Dr. Ronalds Taylor, who has taken an active interest in the activities of the club.

THE GLEE CLUB

THE University of Maryland Glee Club has completed the busiest and most successful year since its organization seven years ago under the direction of Dr. House. The annual Glee Club trip during the Christmas holidays was most successful, and during that time a tour was made through Western Maryland, visiting Emmitsburg, Hagerstown, Boonsboro, Williamsport, Hancock, Cumberland, and Frostburg.

During the season the Club, which was led by Harry Kelchner, President; Cecil Propst, Manager; Bob Wilson, Vice-President; D'Arcy Bonnet and Joe Thoma, Assistant Managers, gave over twenty concerts.

A spring trip was made to Winchester during the Apple Blossom Festival.

THE HORT CLUB

THE Horticultural Club of the University was founded by Dr. E. C. Auchter and seven students, A. J. Barrett, B. L. Burnside, W. P. Hicks, W. B. Baldwin, D. P. Perry, A. N. Pratt, and George Chapman, in 1919. The idea for such a club was originated during a trip in which the above group visited prominent orchards of West Virginia, Virginia, and Maryland and were impressed by the great work being carried on in Horticultural lines.

In 1920 meetings were temporarily suspended, because of the loss of a large number of influential members and in 1921-22 and 1923 the club functioned only occasionally. In fact, it ceased to exist during 1922-23 entirely.

However, in 1923-24 the old spirit was revived under the ardent leadership of D. K. Endslow. At this time the custom of having an annual Horticultural Show was continued. Also the club started the custom of serving dinners at its monthly meetings. This custom has been adhered to ever since.

The Club counts among its friends and members some of the ablest of our faculty, and great benefit and inspiration is gained through talks from these men.

LATIN-AMERICAN CLUB

IN the light of the expanding importance of the Latin-American countries in commerce and in world affairs, and of their relations economically and politically with the United States, the Latin-American Society was organized in 1922. Immediately, all those interested in the new Spanish and Portuguese America, became interested in the new organization. Almost all of the South American students in the University are members of the club and this fact enables the other members to get first hand information on the countries in which they are interested.

The objects of the club are to promote a better understanding of the Latin-American countries and to enable students studying Spanish to gain a practical knowledge of the language by the natural contact with the Latin-American students at the University. Meetings of a social and educational nature are held at which diplomats and others prominent in Latin-American affairs address the club. The membership is open to all who are interested.

LIVESTOCK CLUB

THE Livestock Club is an organization composed of Agricultural students, Faculty, Extension workers, Research men, and prominent Livestock men of the State. This club was organized in the spring of 1924. The purposes of the club are to stimulate interest in Animal, Dairy, and Poultry Husbandry in the University of Maryland; to enable its members to become more familiar with practical factors pertaining to the above; to promote sociability among the students, faculty and extension workers in the above branches of the University of Maryland and with men actively engaged in producing and marketing livestock products; to promote livestock exhibitions at the University of Maryland; and to stimulate interest in the fitting and showing of animals.

The society encourages and supports all judging teams relating to the Livestock industry at the University and throughout the State, and has had a remarkable success on the campus during its existence.

NEW MERCER LITERARY SOCIETY

THE New Mercer Literary Society is the oldest society of any kind on the campus and one of the oldest literary societies actively connected with an American university. In January of 1860, the Mercer Literary Society, named in honor of Dr. William W. Mercer, was organized for the cultivation of the intellectual faculties of the students. The organization was a great success from the start. In 1892, certain changes were made and the name of New Mercer was decided upon. In 1895, the society was merged with the Morrill Society, which had been recently organized. The combination was not successful and the societies separated.

Each year a debate is held with the Poe Society. A cup is offered by Dr. Patterson, former President of the University—the President's Cup. Last year, the New Mercer Society won this cup. Interest is keen and this past fall twenty-six new members were initiated.

THE MARYLAND OPERA CLUB

THE Maryland Opera Club was organized in 1924 by a group of students interested in music, and Elizabeth Swenk was chosen as its first President. The club's first production, "Carmelita," a Spanish operetta, was given in the auditorium as part of the Commencement festivities in June, 1924. The libretto of "Carmelita" was written by B. Louis Goodyear, who has been the club's director since its inauguration on the campus. "Carmelita" met with such success that it was repeated at the beginning of the following scholastic year. On May 27, 1925, the club presented "Erminie," the popular comic opera by Jakobowski, which was enthusiastically received.

On March 9, 1927, the well-known Gilbert and Sullivan opera, "The Pirates of Penzance," was presented most successfully, and received by a large and appreciative audience. The "Pirates," a broad travesty on grand opera, abounding in screamingly funny situations and thrilling good music, was again given on March 24, after Mr. Goodyear had received numerous requests to repeat it. The leading roles were sung with distinction by Katherine Baker, Olive Kelk, Stanleigh Jenkins, Dr. Charles B. Hale, Edward Barron, John McDonald, Albert Cook, Winifred McMinimy, Helen Wooster, and Julia Louise Behring.

The Opera Club has acquired a reputation for the excellent quality of its productions, and much credit is due Mr. Goodyear, who is Director of the School of Singing, for the splendid training, both dramatic and musical, evidenced in the Club's presentations.

Officers of the Opera Club are: Julia Louise Behring, President; Cecil Propst, Vice-President; Frances Gruver, Secretary-Treasurer; and Ellen Jane Keiser, Assistant Secretary-Treasurer.

Orchestral accompaniments for the Opera Club's performances are played by the University Little Symphony Orchestra, which, although originally a part of the Opera Club, is now a separate organization. The Little Symphony Orchestra, which also is directed by Mr. Goodyear, has, besides its broadcasting over the radio, presented a number of successful public programs. Judging from past performances, it is quite safe to predict a most brilliant future for this organization.

POE LITERARY SOCIETY

THE present Poe Literary Society, founded in 1915, is the successor of the Morrill Literary Society, which was established in 1900. During its existence, the society has enjoyed unusual success. Among the prominent men who have been members of the society are numbered Mr. H. C. (Curly) Byrd, Senator "Chief" Tydings, and Dr. L. Broughton.

In 1915, Dr. Patterson offered a silver loving cup to the literary society that won the inter-society debate three times. The Poe was permanent winner in 1919. The society won for a second time in 1924, but after winning the first debate in the new series, lost to New Mercer in 1926.

The first co-eds were elected to membership on January 8, 1919. Miss Ezekiel holds the honor of being the first woman to hold office. She was elected Secretary, May 5, 1920.

In 1920, the following members of the faculty were elected to honorary membership in the Poe: Dr. Homer C. House, Prof. Charles S. Richardson, Prof. George Schulz, Prof. Cotterman, Prof. Zimmerman, and Prof. Lemon.

The success of 1922 was repeated in 1923 by Mr. White and Mr. Watkins, who also won the Alumni Medal for the best speaker. Represented by Mr. Straka and Mr. Mochó in 1924, the Poe won possession of the second Patterson Cup. In 1925, the Poe won the first leg on the third cup, when represented by Mr. Brown and Mr. Witter. In 1926, it lost the inter-society debate for the first time since 1921.

CALVERT FORUM

THE Calvert Forum, honorary public speaking society composed of the best speakers of the University and of men who have shown their ability as leaders in this line of work, is the outgrowth of the Public Speaking Club organized at Maryland five years ago.

The object of this society is to develop the ability of the members in the art of Public Speaking in order to afford an easy and agreeable means for the consideration of important public questions; and, to afford an opportunity for the general exchange of ideas among the members and to engage from time to time, in such activities as will advance the interests of the University.

The Calvert Forum is still in the developing stage and has the possibilities of becoming one of the most influential organizations on the Hill.

THE ROSSBOURG CLUB

*"On with the dance, let joy be unconfined,
No sleep till morn, when youth and pleasure meet."*

OLD inhabitants tell us that the old Rossburg Inn, eight miles from Washington and directly in front of the University, was in its day a famous breakfasting place. Many gay parties from Baltimore and Washington have been held there. "Uncle" Ned, the white haired darkey with his famous "Dancing Fiddle" would play, and they would bow and curtsy daintily to the low, sweet strains of a minuet.

Then in the year 1891, a band of M. A. C. boys who had become tired of a life devoid of social activities, bowed their heads at the shrine of music and thereby confessed devotion to the gay muse, Tempis Chore, and organized a club appropriately named Rossbourg. They resigned themselves to the task of conducting the best dances of the year.

The membership was never so large as at present, nor the interest so lively. Five dances were given and were pronounced great successes.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

IN the spring of 1924, a few campus leaders reorganized the Young Men's Christian Association with the purpose of meeting the demand felt by many students for a man's organization which would assume the leadership in the religious life of the students. Since that time the Association has grown rapidly both in membership and in influence.

The Y. M. C. A. has been most active this year. In the summer at a retreat at Camp Conoy on the South River, the activities for the year were planned. Sunday evenings, group meetings are held for the purpose of discussing the problems of college life and the possibility of solutions for them. These meetings are open.

The Y. M. C. A. believes that all religions are different paths to the same Truth, and aims to be non-paritsan in its relations with students of different faiths. It is the object of the Y. M. C. A. to further broadmindedness, racial understanding, and international goodwill.

THE STUDENT GRANGE

THE Student Grange, a chapter of the Farmer's National Fraternity, was organized in the year 1915. From that time until the present, this organization has been the most active student organization on the campus. The membership has always been limited to students, with the exception of a few faculty advisors who have rendered an invaluable service. The Grange work has been placed entirely in the hands of the students and has been the means of developing the initiative of the individual members.

The alumni of the Student Grange have proven many times that this organization has developed leadership by the commendable public service that they are rendering.

The work of the Student Grange gives to its members training in parliamentary practices, keeps them in touch with the rural communities, trains for leadership and conducts what are thought to be model programs. The Student Grange was started with a purpose and a definite mission. Its success as a student organization has proved that it can fulfill this mission.

THE FACULTY AND PUBLICATIONS

ALTHOUGH publications at the University are the products of student work and ideas, good advice from faculty officials is often needed. Since both the REVELLE and Diamondback handle considerable sums of money, no student cares to assume the entire responsibility for its usage, thus Miss McKenney and Mr. Bowers are of great assistance in keeping the publications in good order financially.

To Mr. Hottel, or "Bill," as he is better known, may be given most of the credit for the success of publications for the past three years. He has worked exceedingly hard to place our publications in their proper status, and even casual observation will show that his efforts have not been in vain.

A HISTORY OF STUDENT PUBLICATIONS

THIRTY years ago, the first copy of the REVELLE appeared, which was the progenitor of the present annual. That small book marked the beginning of student publications at the University of Maryland. The forerunner of the Diamondback did not come on the scene until 1910. Both took immediate root and have continued to the present time, growing and increasing their scope as the University itself grew.

The Maryland Agricultural College had progressed thirty-eight years from its formal opening when the REVELLE, a small book measuring about nine by six inches and not more than one-half inch thick, was issued. It contained short feature articles, school yells, class histories and prophecies, but no individual pictures of students. The only illustrations were a few campus scenes and group pictures of organizations, classes, faculty and athletic teams.

Few changes appeared in the annual for the succeeding three issues. However, in 1900 a full page write-up was included with the picture of each graduate. For several years after that, the bindings and covers exhibit the only variations in the books. Indeed, in 1909, the REVELLE did not appear. But the next year's annual showed not only an increase in size but also a better quality of material, and for ten years the book served the students and faculty and alumni in a capable fashion.

The Class of 1920 published the last yearbook of the Maryland Agricultural College. In that year, Maryland Agricultural College was combined with the Baltimore schools to form the University of Maryland, and the REVELLE attempted a combination with the Terra Maria of the Baltimore branch. This plan was tried for three years with almost total lack of success. So in 1924, the idea was abandoned and no annual of any kind was published for the College Park schools.

Happily, the REVELLE was revived in 1925 and that year and the year following books were published that carried every feature of the University's activity at College Park and that compared quite favorably with annuals in their class from all parts of the United States. The peak of thirty years' experience is in the reader's hands.

What is now the Diamondback had its inception in 1910 under the name of the Triangle which was a four-page journal less than half the size of the present weekly. It attempted to meet a demand for some means to keep the students and faculty posted on the various activities of the college, then composed of three schools—Arts and Sciences, Agriculture, and Engineering. The idea that the title sought to convey was that on the base of Arts and Sciences rested the other schools of Agriculture and Engineering.

The Triangle appeared twice a month. Obviously, the news in most cases was not of general interest when the bimonthly appeared and did not fulfill the desires of the expanding college and the rapidly increasing student body.

After an existence of four years, the Triangle gave way to the Maryland Agricultural Weekly, edited by the students under the supervision of the Department of English. Its motto was Progress and Service. Two years later when the name of the college was changed from Maryland Agricultural College to the Maryland State College, the name of the publication was changed to the Maryland State Weekly.

On February 6, 1919, the Maryland State Review appeared in the place of the Weekly. Up to that time the paper had remained the same size, but with the appearance of this issue, the page was larger and the subscription price raised from fifty cents per year to one dollar and twenty-five cents per year. An important addition was the co-ed column, since members of the fair sex were enrolling at the college.

When the State College became a part of the University of Maryland in 1920, the paper was called The University Review, but in the first issue an appeal was made to the students for a name that would be emblematic of the University of Maryland.

With the last issue of the scholastic year of 1921 was embodied a reorganized Review under the name that the weekly publication now bears, the Diamondback. It was slightly larger than its predecessor, carrying five columns with a subscription price of two dollars for the year.

The second issue of the scholastic year 1925-26 marked the next change since an additional column was added, making the total six on each of the four pages. Beginning with the first issue of the year 1927, a two page insert was included, which reappeared in the first issue of each month for the remainder of the scholastic year.

Increased material, excellent supervision and better co-operation on the part of the students and faculty have contributed to the value of both publications, making each year's REVEILLE and Diamondback exceed the former years' in value.

THE REVEILLE

IN publishing a college annual which attempts to mirror university life in its entirety, one meets with many difficulties. The work as a whole is extremely interesting, but one is tied and bound in every direction with petty details. These details seem to constitute the book.

Many changes have been made in the various sections of this book from former editions and it is hoped that they are an improvement. Each portion of the book has been gone over time and again for possible mistakes; however, neither the Editor, nor the Staff are beyond error.

Such a school as the University of Maryland deserves better year-books than the REVELLES of the past and a better book than this 1927 edition, for a school annual is a representation of its inner life.

Thus, a true representation would call for a far better annual than that contained within these covers. May our year-books of the future far surpass their predecessors.

SECRETARY JARDINE AND SENATOR TYDINGS

ATHLETICS AT MARYLAND UNIVERSITY

F. B. BOMBERGER

IN thinking of athletics at any institution of learning, one unconsciously—almost inevitably—visualizes the victories of her various teams of athletes. The relay team that defeats rival teams from the great universities and blazons the name of their Alma Mater in the headlines of the sport pages; the basketball team that wins a conference championship; the football team that defeats its mightiest opponents and enrolls the names of some of its members among the mythical immortals who constitute the "All-State" or "All-America" teams that the teams representing the "old school" have triumphed for so many years over its most hated rival as to make winning an annual "gloat"—these are the ideas that flood the mind when we link the name of a college or university with the word athletics.

And yet to one who has, for almost a quarter of a century, been identified with athletics at the University of Maryland, there are other considerations that fill the mind when the success of one of its teams is heralded to the world. I yield to no one in desiring victory for our athletes. If any one enjoys more than I, the winning of an athletic contest by one of our teams, I surely have failed to meet him.

But it is not merely in the knowledge of the fact that our teams have been victorious over other teams that I rejoice. Had our warriors gone to battle, fought their fiercest, displayed the very best mettle that was in them, exhibited to the utmost the results of their splendid coaching—and yet, in the face of their utmost strivings, been defeated by stronger, and better teams—even then I should have been filled with a profound satisfaction resulting from the realization that the teams which had carried the hopes and aspirations of the University into the fiercest of the fighting was a clean team—a team of bona fide students, untouched by the stain and dishonor of professionalism.

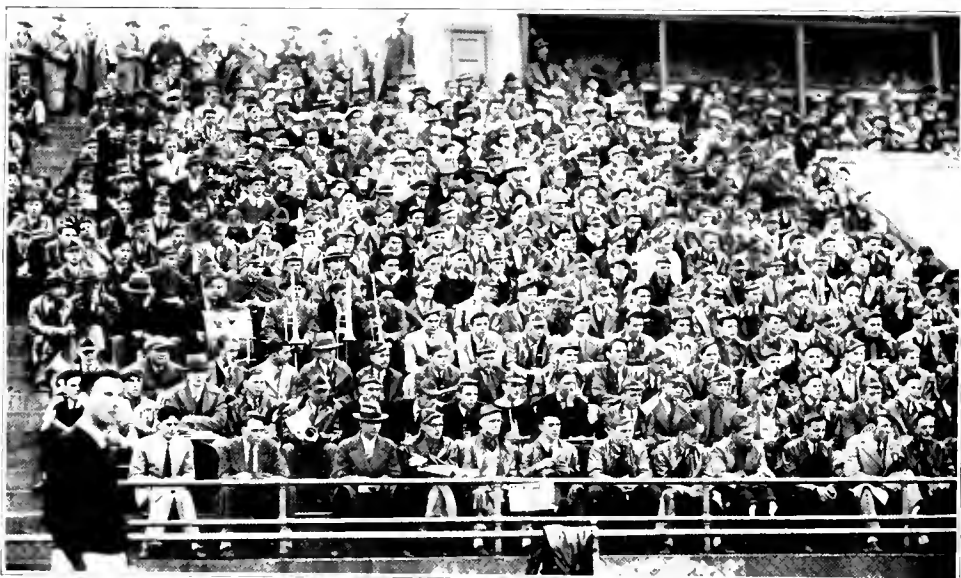

THE CHEER LEADERS

The realization of that fact—and it is a fact which no one familiar with the circumstances and history of our athletics can successfully refute—that the teams of Maryland University are clean teams in the strictest sense of the word, should be the proudest boast of any student or alumnus of old Maryland.

And it is a matter of which the students and the alumni and the faculty of the University are intensely proud. It adds a zest to their enjoyment to know that when an athletic team representing the University wins a contest, it wins a real victory, a victory uncontaminated by the taint of professionalism. They are very jealous of the athletic honor of this institution and will guard zealously against any effort to undermine the high standards of our athletic tradition.

That this is a tradition of long standing will be illustrated and demonstrated by a series of incidents which occurred during the football season of 1914. By a freak of fortune the schedule had been so arranged that the team representing the College (then old Maryland Agricultural College) was scheduled to play, within three days, both Hopkins and St. John's. These were the two teams which, in those days, we were most eager to defeat.

A number of veterans from the previous year's team failed to return to College, and the outlook for winning even one of these games seemed very dark. Naturally the students desired to secure all the strength possible for the team. And then temptation came in the unexpected return to College of a veteran who for several years prior thereto had been a tower of strength to our teams. His presence on the team would have increased immeasurably the chances of success in these two crucial contests. Naturally every one hoped and desired that he might be on the team. But under the rules of the Athletic Council, he was ineligible to play.

RAT CHEERING SECTION AT NORTH CAROLINA GAME

Now, bear this in mind. He was a bona fide student of the College, and in any other college of the state (including the two chief rivals named above) he would have been permitted without question under similar circumstances to play on the Varsity team. Yet under our rules he was ineligible. If ever a body of students were strongly tempted to rebel the students of this institution were. But the value of the tradition was recognized, and the team played without the much-desired veteran. With what result?

As if in reward for virtue, the god of fortune favored us and our team performed a feat which no Maryland college team had ever before equalled—defeated two major football teams within three days.

It was a proud day for Maryland Agricultural College (not when we were victorious. That we should rejoice at victory was to be expected under any circumstances) but when the students of this old college rose victorious over their desire to win at any cost and played the game like true sportsmen—the conquest of their opponents only served to heighten and sweeten the victory. The real moral victory was won before the teams went on the field. In these days when throughout the land it is becoming more generally considered honorable for athletic teams to win honorably and dishonorable for them to win by an indirection or violation of the ethics of the game, we students and alumni of Old Maryland should feel proud that this institution was among the pioneers to blaze the way towards an era of clean athletics at our schools and college.

MANAGER SPENCE

MARYLAND has every reason to rejoice over the splendid record of its football machine during the strenuous campaign of 1926. In what was, perhaps, the hardest schedule ever undertaken by any South Atlantic college, Maryland's banner rose triumphant in five out of ten games, and we shared honors in one.

CAPTAIN-ELECT BAFFORD

Our first opponent was Washington College. The boys from the Sho' were fast, but far too light to withstand the battering attacks of the Maryland backfield. Our shifty backs ripped huge holes in the Washington defense and scored almost at will. The outstanding work of the day was done by Pugh, who carried the ball for touchdowns eighty yards on one occasion and fifty-five back to the tune of 12-0, administered by the University of South Carolina. South Carolina's first score resulted from a left end run by Wimberly, following the blocking of one of Kessler's punts. The second score was the result of an error, one of our men dropping the ball, and South Carolina's recovering on Maryland's thirty-five yard line and carrying it over. Both points after touchdowns were missed.

The following Saturday we journeyed to the Windy City with high hopes, but again we were doomed to disappointment. Coach Stagg's powerful Chicago eleven proved too much for us. The Old Liners held with the tenacity of bulldogs until the last ten minutes of play, when Chicago pushed over two touchdowns in rapid succession. Up to that time Chicago had scored but one lone touchdown, the result of a long forward pass, from Marks to Apritz. In spite of good work by Snyder, Schrader and Thomas, the short end of a 21-0 count was our portion.

Yet we were doomed to suffer another setback before finding our stride. Before a larger crowd assembled in Norfolk, Va., the fighting soldiers of V. P. I. took our measure, 24-8. It was the same old thing—inexperience, and costly fumbles proved our undoing. Mike Stevens was at his best, and Snyder made a noteworthy showing in contributing one lone touchdown, but they were unable to stem the tide.

Again back on the home gridiron, Maryland's warriors took new life and vanquished the strong North Carolina eleven, 16-6, in a game with a freak beginning. Maryland kicked off to North Carolina and McPherson, receiving the ball on his own seven yard line, ran for a touchdown. Thus before the game was fifteen seconds old, North Carolina had six points to its credit. But now it was Maryland's turn to cheer, for on the first play made by Maryland, after recovering the ball on a punt after North Carolina failed to gain, Snyder ran through the entire opposing team for our first touchdown. Kessler kicked the goal, putting us one point in the lead. Snyder scored again in the first period and Kessler added the other point. A pass from Kessler resulted in this score. Good defensive work by Thomas, and Leatherman's work on the end helped along.

North Carolina had a chance to score in the third quarter, when she had the ball on our four yard line, but the Terrapins held fast. Although played on a sloppy field, this game was one of the most spectacular of the season, and paved the way for following greater victories.

serves, who took the boys from Kendall Green into camp, 38-7. Maryland's first team was in only for the third quarter, when they rolled up four touchdowns. The other two were made by Pugh. This game was in the nature of a workout for the contest of the next week, that with Yale.

When the news broadcast by a silver-tongued radio announcer, Maryland 15-Yale 0, hit College Park, that staid town gave way to a spirit of revelry.

There were no extenuating circumstances for Yale. Maryland's team was too much for them, and that was all. Our first score came when Capt. Stevens picked up a fumble by Garvey and ran 75 yards for a touchdown. He failed to make the extra point. In the second quarter Kessler ran a punt back from his own 30 yard line to the Blues' fifteen. Stevens drop-kicked a three-pointer from that spot. Soon after the third quarter began the Terrapins again started a triumphant march down the field, at the culmination of which Thomas dived over the goal for our final score. Yale could do nothing against our defense.

No outstanding stars can be picked, although Thomas, Kessler, Leatherman and Adams were conspicuous, for the team worked wonderfully as a unit. Immediately after the final whistle blew, and the loyal Maryland rooters stopped rubbing their eyes, they swarmed on the field and up-rooted the goal posts, which they bore back in sections to exhibit to jealous schoolmates.

The Home-Coming Day Game with Virginia, played Saturday following our triumph over Yale, brought a huge crowd to the Byrd Stadium. Before numerous old grads and hosts of shouting undergraduates a brilliant contest was staged—one of the best ever seen in this section. Although Virginia gained more ground than did the Old Liners, Maryland's loyal rooters felt a keen disappointment in the score of 6-6 at the close of the game.

In spite of Virginia's exceptional ground gaining, Maryland would have won but for a bad break. Captain Mike Stevens scored our first touchdown after a sixty-four yard run in the opening minutes of play. After a failure at goal by Stevens, both teams settled down and sea-sawed back and forth until the final quarter, when Captain Mackall broke through and blocked Kessler's kick, falling on it on the one-foot line. Hushion easily carried it over from there. Virginia threatened three or four times during the course of the battle, but Maryland held.

Mike Stevens missed a heart-rending goal which might have won the game for Maryland, but the ball bounced back after striking the goal-posts.

On a veritable field of mud, Maryland went down before Washington and Lee by the bare margin of a field-goal. Until the last five minutes of play it was anybody's game, neither team seeming to have any advantage, but in the last stages of the battle, Rauber, W. & L. captain, booted a pretty placement kick.

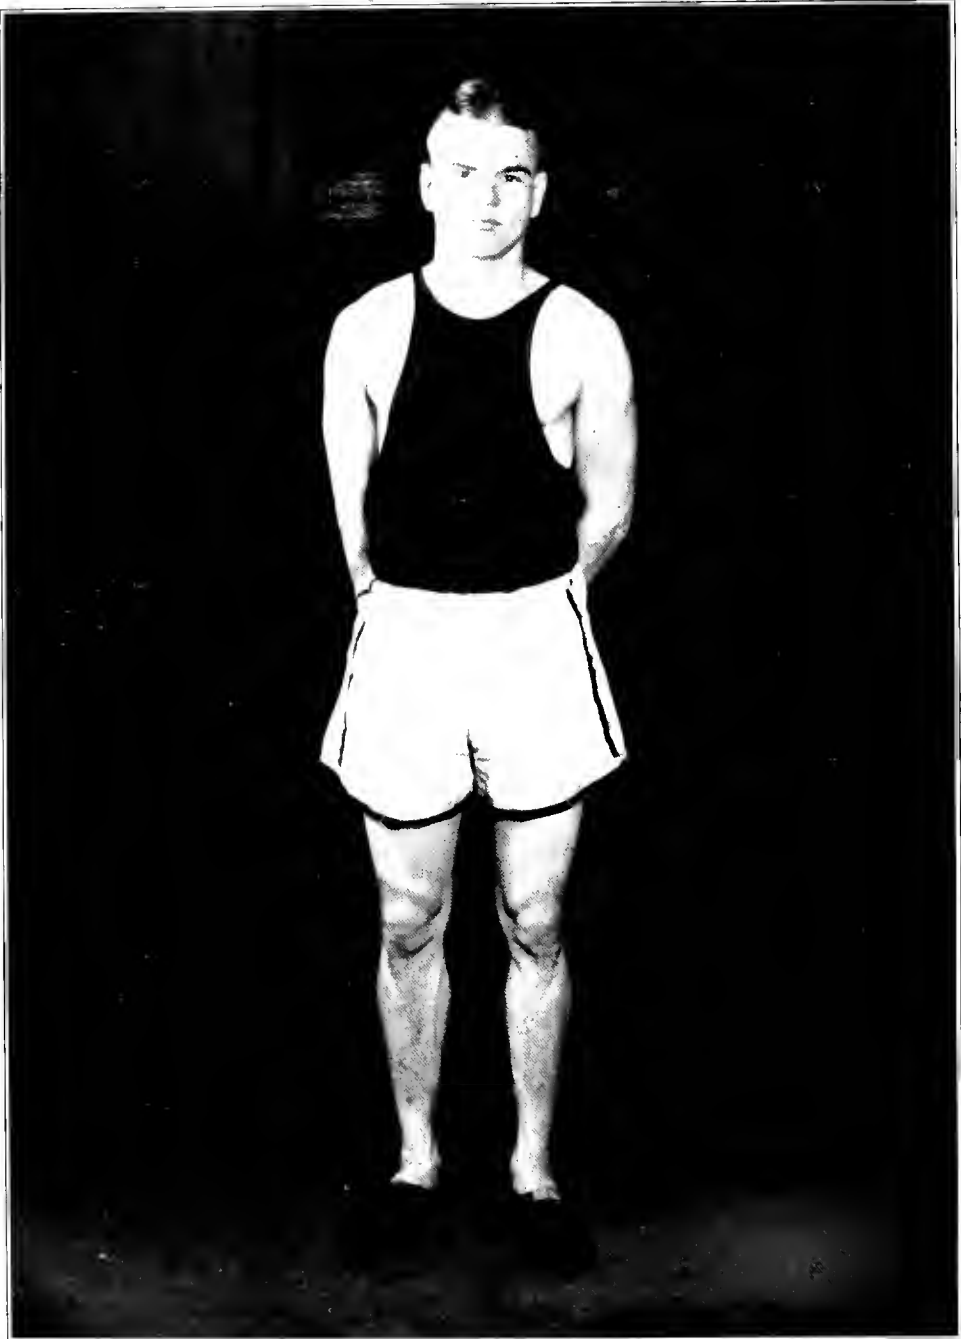

Any attempts at flashy football were prevented by the condition of the field, and as a result the game was devoid of spectacular runs. Capt. Stevens was kept out of the entire game in order that he might appear at his best against Hopkins.

Great as was our victory over Yale, of still more satisfaction to the Sons of Old Maryland was the defeat of our ancient rival, Johns Hopkins, in Baltimore on Thanksgiving Day. The game was one succession of thrills, starting with the scoring of two touchdowns by Hopkins and culminating in a mighty drop-kick by Mike Stevens for the deciding points.

Black were the hopes of Maryland supporters at the close of the first half, when the score stood 14-0 against us. Hopkins was fighting with a spirit born of desperation with which she had fought on three previous occasions when supposedly better Maryland teams were held to tie scores. It seemed that this time she would overcome the Maryland machine. No sooner were the Old Liners on the field for the second half than they began a march for a touchdown which was made by Thomas. Soon after, another touchdown was pushed over, making the score even. Hopkins braced at this point and held until the last quarter, when Mike Stevens sent over a beautiful dropkick which gave us the game, 17-14. This was Capt. Stevens' last appearance in the Maryland uniform and he rose to mighty heights to put the finishing touches on a highly successful season.

TRACK

THE success of Track at the University of Maryland is becoming an established precedent. During the past two indoor seasons our relay team was only defeated twice. However, both of these schools lost to us during later encounters. The indoor season just passed has been especially notable in that the Old Line four outran quartets from such schools as Yale, University of Pennsylvania, University of Virginia, Harvard, and Penn State. The team as a whole was also successful in taking the University of Richmond Indoor Games at Richmond. The running of Captain Roger Whiteford, "Gump" Matthews, "Knocky" Thomas, Charley Pugh, "Slim" Sheriff, Carlton Neunam, and "Buddy" Meyers was outstanding during the indoor season. Thomas, however, should be given more than mere mention as his feat in winning the invitation hundred yard dash at the Fifth Regiment Games in Baltimore over some of the best sprint men in the country was highly creditable.

The prospects for the outdoor season look very good. As far as running events are concerned, we compare well with any team in the country, however, since the graduation of Zuke Supplee and Louis Ditman, last June, our strength in the field events has been seriously impaired.

In the first meet of the season with Virginia Military Institute at Lexington, we displayed our wares in a very creditable manner by taking first place in every track event and three first places in field events.

BASKETBALL

TO trace the history of basketball in detail since its inception at the University of Maryland would be a useless and difficult task. Suffice it to say that in a comparatively short time the indoor game has taken deep root at Maryland, and has occasioned a high degree of interest. Nor is the team that Coach Shipley yearly develops unworthy to bear the banner of the school, for every year to date we have succeeded in winning a majority of games played.

The past season proved no exception to this rule. Although the team that represented Maryland did not quite measure up to the standard set by the sterling combination of the previous year, it was nevertheless able to turn in a record of ten victories out of nineteen games. These victories included triumphs over such teams as North Carolina, South Atlantic Champions; University of Pennsylvania, and Georgia.

In our first encounter of the year, we bowed to American University, who had the advantage of experience in two or three previous engagements. Then came a victory over Washington and Lee, gained in rather easy fashion by a score of 44-32.

Following this we were forced to accept four defeats in rapid succession, at the hands of Michigan, Navy, Virginia, and Washington College. In only one of these, that with Navy, did we give a good account of ourselves, but we may say with all justification that had we had one or two breaks on that occasion the highly touted Midshipman aggregation might have tasted defeat.

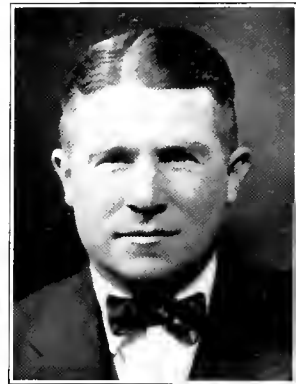

After this disastrous siege, we encountered the University of Georgia on our home floor and were able to emerge victorious by the slender margin of one point, after one of the best games ever seen in this region. The lanky Georgians had everything but we were just a little better that night. Gallaudet was then easily taken into camp, as was Stevens Institute, the team that had occasioned so much trouble the year before.

We met the University of North Carolina then on two successive days, which two contests were split even. The regularly scheduled game we won handily but in the other our reserves could not cope with those of Carolina. Following this we succeeded in scoring one of the biggest upsets of the season. The University of Pennsylvania was conceded to have a distinct edge on us, but we downed the "Quakers" in their own gym by the score of 26-21.

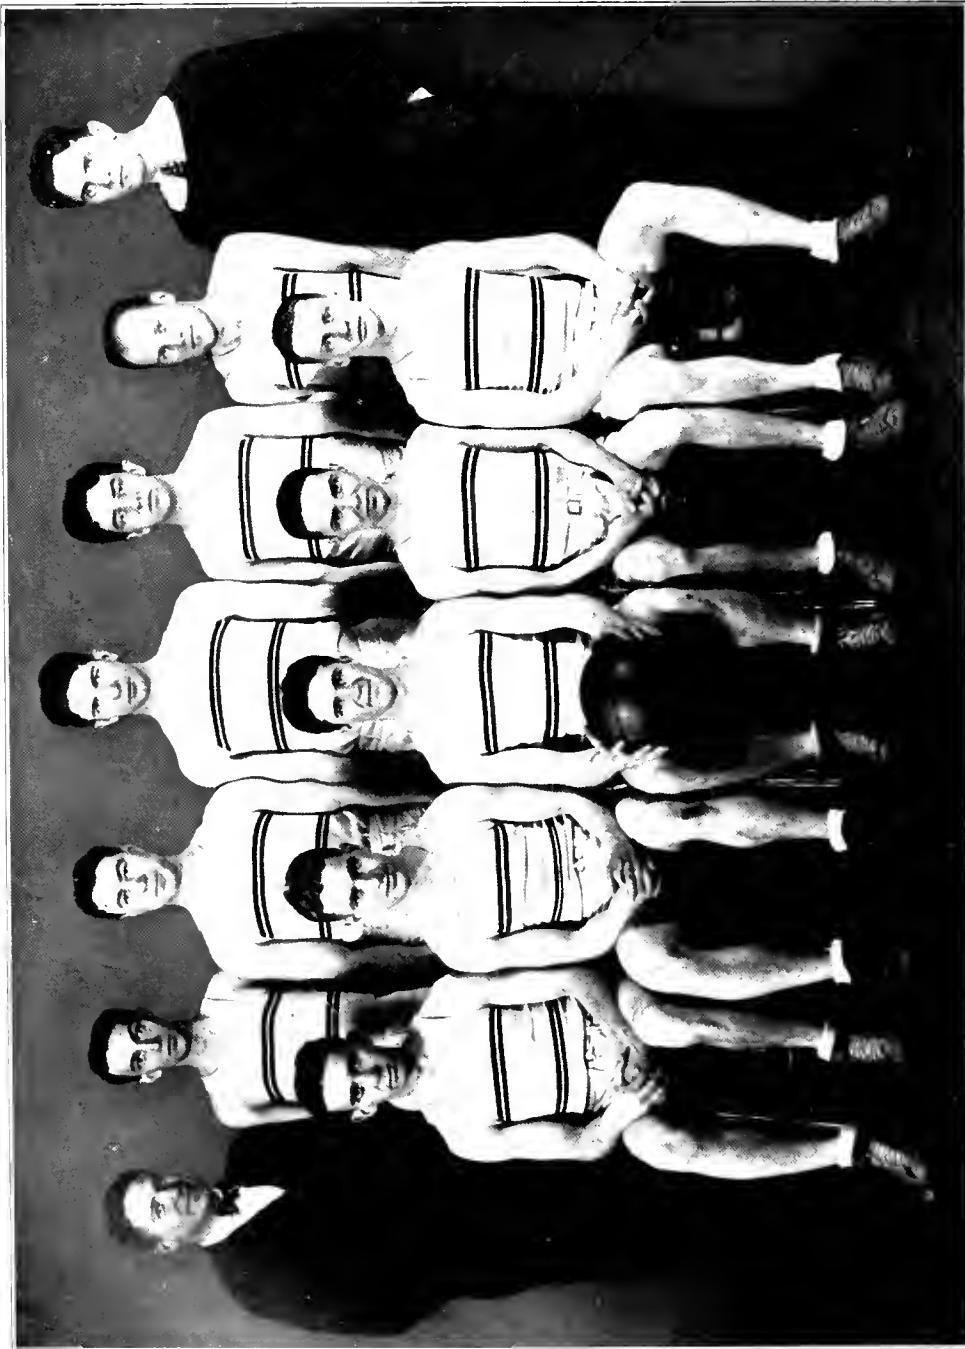

Then Maryland's squad departed on a trip to Lexington, where Washington and Lee retaliated for her earlier defeat. However, Virginia Military Institute, whom we met on the same trip, proved easy for us. We were out for blood when we encountered Virginia for the second time and we obtained revenge in a hair raising contest which required an extra period of play. The teams battled on even terms for the two regular twenty-minute periods, neither gaining the ascendance for more than two or three minutes at a time. But in the extra period, with one minute to play, Linkous shot one in to give us the margin of victory by one point. It was a great game from start to finish, and it left the spectators breathless.

We then went to North Carolina where we were defeated in the initial contest with State. However, in the second game with the University, we emerged victorious.

ACTION DURING WASHINGTON COLLEGE GAME

DEAN

Washington College was met on the following Monday in Baltimore and again defeated us. The boys from the Shore were the only ones to defeat us twice during the year. Western Maryland gave us a little trouble before we succeeded in disposing of them, 32-25, in the last engagement of the regular schedule.

The same old jinx that attended them last year seemed to accompany the "Old Liners" in the Southern Conference Tournament of this year, for we again suffered defeat in the first game, falling before the University of Georgia whom we had previously defeated.

Coach Shipley and the members of the squad deserve a great deal of commendation for the showing of the team. Every man gave his best, and it was always a fighting combination that the other team faced, no matter what the score. Though we accomplished nothing spectacular, we may say that the season proved a real success.

WHEN MARYLAND DEFEATED NORTH CAROLINA

CAPTAIN PAUL TRIPLETT

LACROSSE

MANAGER OSCAR COBLENTZ

FROM the very beginning, Maryland has succeeded in turning out Lacrosse teams so well versed in the Indian game that they have compared very favorably with the best the country has to offer. Due to our singular success along these lines Lacrosse enjoys a prominent position among sports here, being perhaps the best attended of all spring sports.

COACH R. V. TRUITT

The success of the teams turned out every year is truly amazing. Of the large squad of Freshmen who report every spring to submit themselves to the grueling grind, not more than one or two have ever handled a stick. Yet in a few weeks time, a representative and excellent yearling combination is invariably developed. Day by day and week by week, the work goes on, until these green but willing players are converted into the type of men who have succeeded in placing Maryland at the top of the heap.

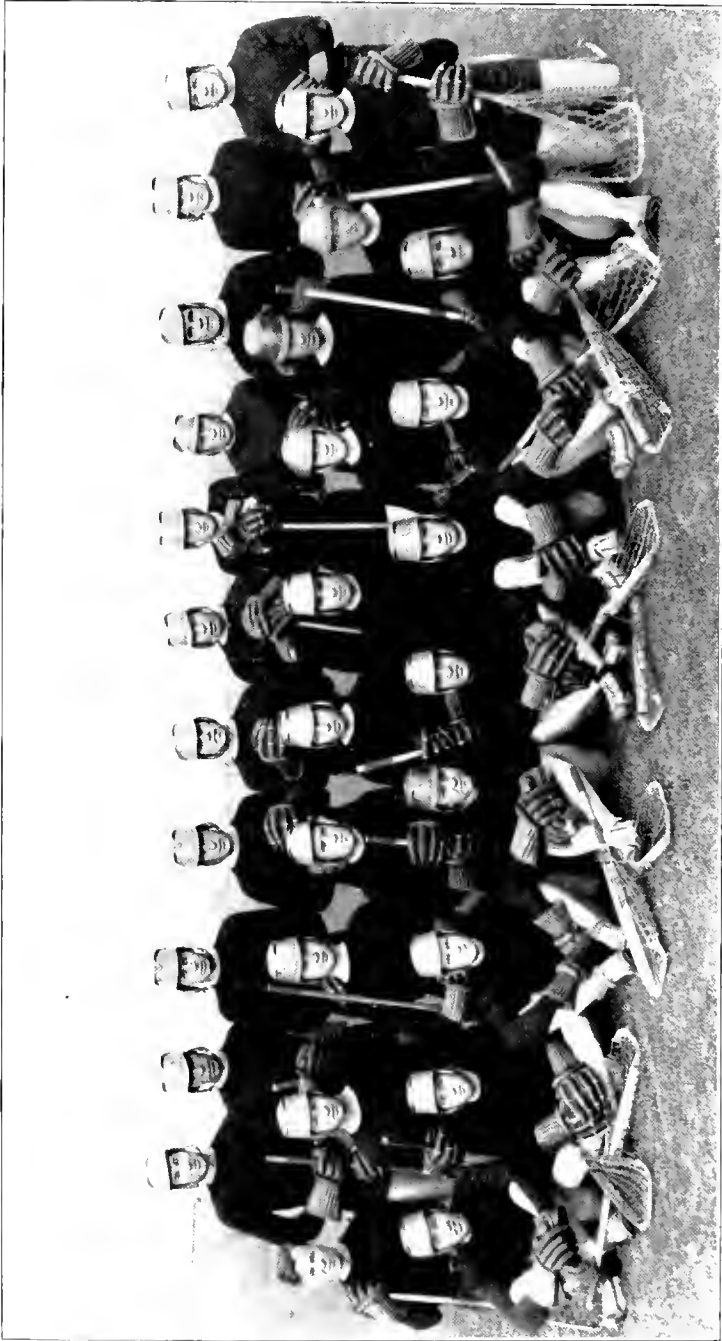

The season of 1926 proved a distinct success despite the fact that we were overcome by our most hated rival, Hopkins, in the final contest. Previous to that we had defeated such teams as those representing Lafayette, Lehigh, and Stevens, conceded to be of the highest ranking in the Inter-Collegiate Lacrosse Association. Because of this record, Maryland was given the fourth position among all schools of the country who are represented by Lacrosse teams.

A great misfortune was our lot in that Coach Truitt was unable to direct the team for the preliminary training of the current season, on account of illness. Whether that misfortune was directly responsible or not for our poor start is a debatable question, for Jack Faber handled the fairly green combination in fine shape, but it is certain that the experienced direction of the man who has played a great part in placing Maryland in the van as regards the antelope game, was sorely missed. In the three contests decided before this book went to press, we were forced to take the short end of the count in two instances, bowing to the service teams of West Point and Annapolis.

We succeeded in humbling Harvard, and the team's playing in this game gives promise that the season will be successful, despite the poor beginning.

This year the roster of the team holds the names of a goodly number of fairly green men. With this combination playing together a great deal is expected in future years, even more than has been done in the past.

At this time we feel certain that the turning point has been reached and that by the time this book appears, Maryland will be rejoicing in a record containing a large majority of victories.

BASEBALL has long been recognized at the University of Maryland. Before stadiums, gymnasiums, and the best of athletic equipment were realities, Maryland men were out fighting for the honor of their school on the diamond. Recently, interest in this national sport has been on the wane, but there is no reason why that interest should not be revived. Excellent teams might be turned out.

COACH SHIPLEY

This year there is every indication that a winning combination will be developed by Coach Shipley. Although the majority of the games will take place after this book goes to press, we have already something to boast about. In our first game, the University of Richmond was defeated and this same team on the following day rather handily trimmed Navy. With such a start, we should go far and there is no reason why Captain Murray's aggregation should not return a majority of victories.

As this book goes to press, we have won our fifth straight game, so prospects look exceedingly good for the remainder of the season.

CROSS-COUNTRY

CROSS-COUNTRY is a sport about which little is heard, but which is always represented by a good team at Maryland. Through rain and snow, over hills and valleys, the members of the "suicide club" toil daily in order that the Old Line school may not be found wanting when the scheduled meetings arrive. And they are not submitted to this punishment in vain, for in this way are developed combinations which bring honor and glory to the University. The past season was perhaps the most successful of all campaigns. Under the leadership of Captain Neunam the squad acquitted itself nobly by winning all three scheduled dual meets, and annexing third place in the Southern Conference titular event.

COACH R. V. TRUTT

In the first contest of the season Hopkins was humbled by the Terrapins by the narrow margin of one point. Then William and Mary was decisively defeated, 19-28. On Home-Coming Day Virginia was unable to gain the victory in an engagement marked by thrilling finishes. In the big contest for the Southern Conference championship, Maryland scored 64 points, for a rating of third, to wind up a highly successful year.

A good deal of interest was aroused this year by the awarding of major letters for cross-country, and all berths were eagerly contested for. From now on this interest should increase even more. In keeping with the rise of athletics at Maryland, this sport bids fair to improve every year.

CAPTAIN TINGLEY

TENNIS

FOR quite a few years Tennis has been recognized at Maryland in the capacity of a minor sport. And in the face of great difficulty good representative teams have been developed. Despite the lack of any coaching facilities whatsoever large numbers have turned out every year to compete for berths on the team, and a good deal of interest generally has been shown.

Recently Tennis has been elevated to the rank of the major sports, and with this advancement in rating, the interest attendant upon this particular sport is expected to be greatly increased.

Captain Tingley's combination has an enviable record to uphold, for last year under the leadership of Bill Weber the team gained a virtual championship of three states—Maryland, Virginia, and Delaware—by conquering the leading teams of those states. Of this winning aggregation of players four are available this season. With these four as a nucleus it is expected that a formidable combination will be developed.

Manager Bill Korff has arranged an attractive schedule, on which are such opponents as Virginia, W. and L., and Navy. While it is yet too early to foresee the outcome of these contests, all indications point to a successful season.

INTER-FRATERNITY BASKETBALL

THE past year saw the deposition of Delta Sigma Phi from their three-year claim on the Inter-Fraternity Championship and the establishment of Sigma Nu in that exalted position as champion of the Greeks. Kappa Alpha, winner of the first half, met Sigma Nu, winner of the second half in a three game battle for the championship, from which Sigma Nu emerged victorious after winning the first and third games. Every game was well contested and the quality of sportsmanship shown was a credit to all the traditions of "Old Maryland."

THE work of the Military Department has progressed in a most satisfactory manner. The R. O. T. C. Unit and the Military Department have received the whole-hearted support of the faculty and the student body without which their work could never reach the high standard required to attain the coveted designation of "Distinguished College."

This distinction has been awarded the University of Maryland for five consecutive years and it will be the goal of all concerned to continue this enviable record indefinitely.

The strength of the Unit for the college year 1926-27 was four hundred and thirty-four, an increase of forty-nine over the enrollment for the college year 1925-26.

On the following pages, you will find an account of Four of Maryland's most famous ones.

THE FOUR HORSEMEN

THE ROLLICKING FOURSOME

SINCE John Erskine wrote his "Private Life of Helen of Troy" and Wm. Randolph Hearst gave us an inside story of "Canned Peaches," it would seem as if something with no trace of scandal might be desirable. Consequently, a selection of these four who are all innocence personified should at least be appropriate.

These STUDENTS are located far above the noise and din of the busy world, under the very eaves of Calvert Hall and it is rumored that they fly the green and gold on St. Patrick's Day. However, since two of the four are snakes, this hardly seems apropos.

Let us take these illustrious athletes one by one, starting with The Mike Stevens. This bow-legged member of the "Snake's Nest" club, a fraternity whose reputation was seriously impaired when it became known that its members peered across the intervening space between them and their neighbor's windows, is quite a bashful man; but he seems to have "IT." His secret ambition has been to kiss every passable co-ed on the campus and write about it in his memory book. This failure (?) year after year has finally broken his spirit until he has descended to the level of a corn-cob pipe of body-degenerating effects and an ever-increasing interest in keeping a memory book which is devoid of feminine reminiscences. (?)

Roger Whiteford, that cherub-like herring, the second of this lovely foursome, has concentrated his life's efforts on trying to get a date with his ideal of perfection—Edith Burnside, one of the WOODEN SHOE TWINS. Time after time his ever active (?)

"THEY FLY THE GREEN AND GOLD ON ST. PATRICK'S DAY"

HE SEEMS TO HAVE "IT"

brain has devised ways and means of accomplishing his lifelong purpose; but it has been to no avail. Brave in the face of these reversals his efforts at times have seemed almost indefatigable, but it seems that Fate has colleagueed with this proud beauty in sending him to defeat. Finally, the human spirit could stand it no longer, with the result that Runt has been cast into the depths of despair—his beacon of light extinguished forever. The world had lost sight of this heroic soul until recently when he was discovered in a remote corner of the track dressing room trying to swipe enough adhesive tape to mend a pair of worn-out golf stockings and patch a spare tire for THAT FORD.

Now we come to Charley Pugh and Ed Tenney who are both members of a fraternity on whose seal we find "Dieu et Les Dames." May the good Lord help any damsels with whom these two come in contact, "cow-eds" or otherwise. This Pugh, besides being a would-be football player and a spike shoe artist, drives Harry Porten's ex-Ford and has become a familiar sight around Chaney's Garage trying to hook "Slim" out of a couple of old tires.

But Tenney! (I blush outright when I write this), for the following is merely a series of gentle hints of which we spoke at the beginning of this section; and we dare not print the truth.

From reliable sources we have found the reasons for Ed's becoming bald. It seems that too many Co-eds have been stroking his hair. As an example of his powers and abilities with the ladies, listen to the information which was contributed by Charley Pugh and several other eye witnesses. For some unknown reason a Sigma Delta girl pulled a faux pas and went out in the sun parlor when Ed and Albert Orton were . . . ! Then Alberta had to go to Washington, so she sent Ed home. On the way up to the barracks he dropped in at the A O II house for a chin or what-not, and it so happened that the same Sigma Delta girl who had blundered out on the sun parlor went up to the A O II house to complete some school work. As she was going upstairs she saw Ed and Ruth Barnard . . . !

It is rumored that Tubby Herzog was peering through the windows that night, so he came over and Ed left for the Homestead and Dorothea Freseman. It was too dark to see exactly what happened on the front porch !

That is work for an unlimited imagination.

They got cold feet when they got to Rockville

FRATERNITY

SIGMA PHI SIGMA:

Far, far away by the railroad tracks these high hatters conduct their bridge games. On an average of about once a month they condescend to come up to civilization and give the rest of the world a treat.

KAPPA ALPHA:

Hail to the grand Knights of Applesauce! If ever you would gaze upon an industrious group of young men, visit the K A house and see them one and all draped over sofas, chairs, and beds investigating the mysteries of sleep.

SIGMA NU:

The Snake's Nest is just back of Bill White's post. The boys are very forward, and after supper each evening they boldly march next door to their neighbors' and chew the rag, etc. Several have been caught peering through the east windows at late hours of the night.

DELTA SIGMA PHI:

The last word in basketball (and sometimes the last place in the frat loop) comes from the old carnation. The Barracks boys are wondering when the Overland touring is going to be converted into a truck in order to facilitate transportation of the beef trust.

PHI SIGMA KAPPA:

These social satellites are members of the international association of telephone poles. They miss no social function within the radius of 1,000 miles and their motto is clothes make the man. Recently, several of the dear brothers were detected casting roguish glances at the girls.

ALPHA OMICRON PI:

World famous for the origin of the A O II strut. It is done in the following manner: Wrap the coat as tightly as possible around the body; the head is drooped down as the blossom of a beautiful flower on hot August afternoons. The next step is to cultivate the slink, which is accomplished by never allowing the feet to leave the ground while in motion, the more scuffling the better. We heartily recommend this to all aspirations to A O II. For further information see Nova, Ruth or Margaret.

PHI ALPHA:

We fear that some day a seven ton truck is going to turn down College Avenue too sharply and carry the front porch and parlor of the Φ A house along with it. One member recently made the startling statement that they once owned a front yard.

SIGMA DELTA:

Oh Girls! Come see our new warehouse. It has a beautiful lawn and a whole wheelbarrow full of overshoes on the small front porch, and When it Rains it Pours—through our roof and cellar.

KAPPA XI:

Not sufficiently informed upon their habits to intelligently burn them up. However, from a few rumors it would seem as if one or two of them would do well to borrow the hose shown in the Phi Sig house party picture to wash away a few scorched cinders.

ALPHA UPSILON CHI:

If we were looking for the original two extremes, we might look here and find them in Fig and her tall sorority sister, Reds.

DELTA PSI OMEGA:

You have been wondering why these boys have their front lawn plowed up. They are just practicing up for vacation days, by cracky!

NU SIGMA OMICRON:

These boys are certainly noted for sub-rosa parties and the great amount of attention they show to co-eds.

DELTA MU:

Let's create some new offices in the student assembly so that the Delts can snap up a few more officers that have run on a non-fraternity ticket.

SIGMA TAU OMEGA:

Hello children! This is Aunt Martha! This familiar sound is music to the ears of these boys when it comes over the radio. Any one of them will tell you that it is very thrilling to listen in on a bedtime story.

ALPHA GAMMA:

Gracious, what a lazy bunch of boys! Why, not a one of 'em has got out of bed afore six o'clock since they bin here. Ye gods! How lazy some people be!

ONE GIRL TO ANOTHER

(Apologies to Lloyd Mayer)

WELL my dear, I'm so awfully glad to SEE you I mean, it SEEMS so EXCRUCIATINGLY good that WE can get TOGETHER and HAVE a REGULAR old TALK TOGETHER AGAIN. My DEAR, you SIMPLY can't imagine where I'VE been every weekend for the LAST month. I'VE been out to MARYLAND, my DEAR, and EVERY time with a DIFF-erent boy, in a different FRATERNITY and I'VE had THE most WONDERFUL TIME you CAN'T imagine—I was so POPULAR—WHAT? you were OUT there YOURSELF! I don't see HOW I could HAVE missed YOU, you're so PECULIAR looking, I MEAN YOU'RE so DISTINGUISHED looking I mean I think the BOYS out there ARE wonderful. AND my DEAR, I met the GRANDEST man—his name is ED TENNEY and he's so CUTE and NICE looking and his HAIR is sort of THIN and I mean what there is of it is so sort of CURLY and NICE I just LOVE to run my FINGERS through it and there's ONLY ONE thing ABOUT this MARVELOUS man, HE ALWAYS wants TO NECK, I mean he SIMPLY SLAYS me and I really can't RESIST him, HE's oh so MASTERFUL. AND oh my DEAR, while I was OUT at THAT K A house I saw THE funniest little BOY. Why all HE did was GLOWER and SCOWL, I believe they call it GRIPE out THERE His name was Peewee and HONESTLY I was so scared and there was another MAN who was NAMED TED and EVERYBODY called HIM BROWNING or something, but I DON'T know WHAT that means, BECAUSE there WEREN'T any PEACHES there. And then I saw some EXQUISITE boys AT the Sigma NU house and ONE of them is so cute you WOULDN'T BELIEVE it and HE just THRILLS me to the MARROW. I MEAN he actually does and I think he's a CAPTAIN of the TRACK team or SOMETHING and he REALLY slings a WICKED line and there was the CUTEST sort of FAT man there I think his name was FRED and OH how HE can SHOOT the BULL and I SIMPLY went WILD over him. He LOOKED so NICE and ALL those boys looked sort of ATHLETIC and big I LOVE the BRUTES. And my DEAR, I went to a PLACE down by the RAILROAD TRACKS where there were the DEAREST lot of BOYS and it was Sigma PHI sigma or SOMETHING and I want to tell YOU THAT they all SHAKE a MEAN hoof AND I NEARLY threw ONE hip OUT of JOINT trying to DO the BLACK BOTTOM down THERE and ONE of them is OH so distinguished LOOKING and HE had ALL kinds of funny looking PLEDGE pins on and he MUST be such a POWER around THERE. I think his NAME is FAHEY or SOMETHING and I mean he's awfully NICE but HE REALLY doesn't know MUCH about NECKING because I mean I wanted him to PET me a LITTLE and HE sort of giggled and LOOKED funny and was so DELICIOUSLY naive my DEAR I was SIMPLY ENTHRALLED BECAUSE I never MET a MAN like THAT before and I didn't THINK that there were ANY at MARYLAND so INNOCENT. They MOST all WANT to NECK all THE time, like that TENNEY man. And I saw ANOTHER man THERE who MUST have BELN EIGHT feet TALL, and he looks just like a BEANPOLE he's so nice I'll bet my LAST lipstick that the CO-EDS are SIMPLY CRAZY about him I think his name was PARKS or SOMETHING. AND my DEAR, I went to ANOTHER house off on some ROAD it was DELTA Sigma PHI and I mean SOME of those BOYS are awful hounds and SOME of them LOOK like they NIVER saw a GIRL and there was a PER-fectly irrepressible man NAMED JONES or something and I mean HE laughed at LVERYthing and he's SUCH a wit and ANOTHER one wa snamed SPOTTSWOOD and I mean he is GRAND he's so sort of high and mighty kind of and he CAPTURED MY fancy and my DEAR I went to another place THAT I think is the PHI sigma Kappa and THEY'RE really the BIGGEST sheiks of ALL, I mean I NEVER SAW so MANY good-looking CLOTHES BEFORE in MY life and the yard was SORT of CLUTTERED UP with EMPTY flasks and I knew THEY had a GOOD time THERE and my DEAR they ALL necked DIVINELY and I had a GORGEOUS time and one BOY they CALLED TITE and he and ANOTHER named WIENIE were WOWS they ACTUALLY were and I think THAT'S a MARVELOUS place BECAUSE none of them let THEIR studies interfere with THEIR education if you know what I mean my DEAR. AND at ALL these places I saw a SORT of SMALL man HE WAS a PROFESSOR OF SOMETHING and I think THEY called HIM MISTER CADISCH or something and they all hung AROUND him and I THINK they must have him in classes OR SOMETHING. And BELIEVE me I think they're all WONDERFUL. And I ALWAYS feel so sort of PAWED over when I COME back FROM there and I'M going AGAIN soon and I'LL TELL you ALL ABOUT it I mean I ACTUALLY will.
